"SOUTHERN VS. The publications named have not recovered their former Southern circulation, nor are they likely to. Especially is this the case with those of the Harpers, who from the commencement of hostilities, took the lead in vulgar, disgusting abuse of the people by whose support they had prospered, and who still continue the same course. Harper's Weekly and Monthly hardly sell now. The newsboys have found that their in vestments in these articles are not remunerative, and are dropping them. Indeed, the Southern people recoil instinctively from everything which bears the Harper's imprint, and school books from that house are now almost everywhere rejected.
